FAMILY XMAS PARTY AT REID ESTATE

At Millbrae, the country seat of the late D. O. Mills, now the property of his daughter, Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, there was a family party assembled from the other side of the continent. Mrs. Reid came to California early in December. Her son, Ogden Reid, and his wife and their two pretty children, came a week or so ago to be with her for Christmas. Her brother, Ogden Mills, who was with her for a few days, returned to New York the day her son and his family arrived. Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills are spending the holidays at Staatsburg, New York.

DEATH OF AGNES E. WOOD

Mrs. Agnes E. Wood of 542 Cowper street, Palo Alto, died late Saturday afternoon in the Lane hospital, San Francisco, after a lingering illness. She had suffered from pernicious anaemia for many months and had been under the doctor's care for the past year.

A blood transfusion operation earlier in the week, in which an attaché of the hospital gave a quart of his blood to put new life in the woman, prolonged her life for a few days. She had been in the hospital for three weeks.

Mrs. Wood was born on the present site of Los Altos 42 years ago. She had lived in Palo Alto for the past eleven years. Before becoming ill she was a prominent member of the Pocahontas Lodge in Palo Alto.

Mrs. Wood is survived by her husband, W. C. Wood, a Palo Alto contractor; a son, Louis Betzold; a sister, Mrs. Alfred Tast of Westport, Cal.; and an adopted son, Marvin Wood.

The funeral was held Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock from St. Thomas Aquinas church. The remains were buried at the Catholic cemetery, Menlo Park.

The deceased was formerly Agnes Betzold and was raised in Redwood City.

WOMAN KILLED BY AUTO SISTER OF REDWOOD MAN

Mrs. Margaret Pierson, a sister of A. M. Robertson, the San Francisco book publisher who lives in Redwood City, was killed in the metropolis Monday night by an automobile, which rushed away into the night.

Mrs. Pierson, who was 57 years old, was walking home from a Christmas dinner with her brother-in-law's family, Dr. Conrad Well, 1912 Clay street, accompanied by her daughter, when she met her death.

As she was crossing Van Ness avenue she was struck by a large automobile that dragged her 100 feet, leaving her lying across the streetcar tracks 100 feet from the crossing, her skull crushed and her clothes half torn from her body. She died before the ambulance reached Central emergency hospital.

HALFMOON BAY NEWS OF WEEK

The ladies of the Methodist church realized a little over $70 at their bazaar last Friday and Saturday and wish to thank the public for its patronage.

Dr. and Mrs. E. R. Hoffman took a spin to Richmond last Sunday for a visit with the Gelbmans. Prof. and Mrs. H. C. Hall accompanied them as far as Corte Madera where they spent the day with Mrs. Hall's parents.

Mrs. Wm. Bradley who for the past year has been living with Mrs. P. P. Quinlan, her aunt, on last Wednesday left for Tuolumne City, Tuolumne county, to join her husband who has a position in a lumber mill there.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie McGinty visited Mrs. Grace Heusing, the sister of the former, in the Florence Ward hospital on Friday of last week.

Mrs. Hersey and daughter of Lindsay, Tulare county, visited their friend, Mrs. P. P. Quinlan, this week. Henry N. Levy's big store is looking rather attractive since it has been remodeled. The big glass front admits of a lavish display of goods and as a means of attracting customers it is not to be underrated. Mr. Levy is to be highly commended for his enterprise.

Thos. Borneman, who was to manage the local affairs of the Great Western Power Company, has been selected to take charge of a gang of forty men at construction work for the company up in the mountains in Plumas county. Mr. Borneman is to be congratulated on account of his well deserved promotion. He is now not only in a position to command good pay, but where the opportunity for further advancement will not be lacking. We hope to see Tom on the top rung of the ladder some day. His place will be filled by a Mr. Merrill.

The Halfmoon Bay Aerle of Eagles will journey to Miramar this evening to formally open the Miguel Casino by the sea. The new hotel has just been completed at a cost of $25,000. It is a modern building with all the up-to-date accommodations. The big ballroom will be crowded this evening with a gay crowd of dancers to enjoy the fine maple floor and catchy music. The bracing breezes that come from the ocean close by will sharpen the appetites of the merry makers for the inviting supper to be furnished by Mrs. Miguel. If you miss this meal you will miss one of the most tempting suppers ever placed before a human being. Don't fail to attend this big event.

JOHN SKELLY DIES AT SAN MATEO ON TUESDAY

John Skelly, resident 307 South C street, San Mateo, died early Tuesday morning. He had been ill for some time. He is survived by a widow, son and married daughter. Skelly had been an invalid a number of years. At one time he was in the junk business and was well-known in every section of the county.

Mirror Superstitions.

The classic legend of Narcissus probably has its origin in the belief that if a man sees his image in water he will die. Nor has the idea vanished in our own day. Professor Frazer, in his "Golden Bough," tells us that in Oldenburg it is thought that if a man sees his reflection after a death he will die himself. Therefore all the mirrors in a house of mourning are covered with white cloth, and in some parts of Germany everything that glitters or is capable of reflection—even windows, clocks, etc.—is covered. The same custom prevails in parts of England and Scotland and in Madagascar. When a man is dying the Suni Mohammedans of Bombay cover the mirrors in his room. And not only this, but they habitually follow the same practice in their own rooms before going to sleep, thinking that in sickness or sleep the soul is especially likely to slip away. According to Professor Ralston, the Raskolniks look upon a mirror as an accursed thing, the invention of the devil, though it is not quite certain that their objection arises from the cause under consideration.—New York Post.

GRATEFUL PATIENT BUYS RED CROSS SEALS

Tells Why He Supports Great National Red Cross Christmas Movement.

"Personal experience means much in one's attitude toward the Seals. Will you let me tell why both gratitude for the saving of my life and a desire to help exterminate tuberculosis makes me buy and use Red Cross Christmas Seals?" This is a request in a letter from a cured patient in one of Wisconsin's County Hospitals for Tuberculosis, who says:

"I was shocked to learn in 1910 that I had consumption. I thought that was the end of me. Fortunately for me the National Tuberculosis Association and the American Red Cross had taken up the task of informing the nation that a pulmonary tuberculosis can be arrested and perhaps cured by a combination of fresh air, good food, perfect rest, and freedom from care. In course of time this good news had reached Wisconsin and the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association was organized to carry the message into every corner of the state. Through this propaganda sanatoria were established in various parts of the state. So when the disease became a very personal matter to me, there was an institution near at home to teach me how to breathe, eat, rest, and think, so as to live with tuberculosis, and at a price within reach of my moderate purse. This was all the result of the philanthropic propaganda of these national organizations and the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association, to whom I must always be grateful for my present health and strength."

What Red Cross Seals have done in Wisconsin they have done and are doing in every other state in the Union. All but ten per cent of the proceeds, which is used for expenses, remains in the state where the Seals are sold to be used for tuberculosis work.

The Right Road.

Young man, you are a locomotive; you are a thing that goes by power inside of you; you are made to go. In fact, considered as a machine, you are very far superior to a locomotive. The maker of a locomotive is a man; your maker is man's maker. You are as different from a horse or an ox or a camel as a locomotive is different from a wheelbarrow or a cart or a coach. Now, do you suppose that the being who made you—manufactured your machine—did not make a special road for you to run upon? My idea of religion is that it is a railroad for a human locomotive and that just as sure as it undertakes to run upon a road adapted only to animal power it will bury its wheels in the sand, dash itself among rocks and come to inevitable wreck.—J. G. Holland.

Gravitation.

Both Dante and Shakespeare preceded Newton in knowledge of the principle if not the law of gravitation. Shakespeare says in "Troilus and Cressida":

But the strong base and building of my life is as the very center of the earth. Drawing all things to it.
Three centuries before Shakespeare Dante said in the "Inferno":
Thou dost imagine we are still On the other side the celestial point, where I Clapsed the earth piercing worm, fell cause of ill. So far I continued to descend, That side we kept, but when I turned then we Had passed the point to which all bodies tend.

Legend of the Echo.

An echo is a sound reflected from a distant surface. Sound is produced by waves or pulses of the air, and when those waves come in contact with a cliff or wall or other opposing surface they are reflected like light or heat, and the returning waves cause a repetition of the sound. The word echo is of Greek origin. According to ancient mythology, it was the name of a mountain nymph, daughter of the air and the earth. Echo was one of Juno's attendants, but her loquacity displeased Jupiter, so she was deprived of the power of speech by Juno and permitted to answer only when she was spoken to. Afterward Echo fell in love with a beautiful youth named Narcissus and was changed into a stone, which still retained the power of voice. Milton perpetuates her thesis:

And Echo, sweetest nymph that liv'st unseen Within the airy shell, Canst thou not tell me of a gentle pair That liest thus Narcissus are? —Philadelphia Press.

Beethoven's Fits of Rage.

Beethoven's behavior was often atrocious. In giving lessons to young ladies he would sometimes tear the music to pieces and scatter it about the floor or even smash the furniture. Once when playing in company there was some interruption. "I play no longer for such hogs!" he cried and left the piano. He once called Prince Lobkowitz an ass because a bassoon player happened to be absent.—Dole's "Famous Composers."

The "shivaree" was introduced into America by the French of Louisiana and Canada. Of course "shivaree" is a corrupt, contracted form of charivari, the French word, but its meaning is the same. The charivari began as a regular wedding serenade, but came to be reserved only for unpopular marriages. The council of Tours, at the beginning of the seventeenth century, forbade this form of serenade, the penalty being excommunication from the church, but this did not put an end to the practice.—Exchange.

CITY OFFICIAL PAPER

HAPPY NEW YEAR

Thank you and may you have many of them.

For sixty years the Times-Gazette has been in the habit of wishing its subscribers and friends the compliments of the season. During those sixty years we have seen peace and war at home, and war and peace abroad; we have experienced prosperous times and we have seen the pinch of adversity upon our national resources. During the past year we of the United States have been blessed with great prosperity at the expense of our cousins across the Atlantic. Today as we wish you the best and the happiest year that has ever been yours, may we extend the wish beyond the confines of our own country and wish that peace may come from war and that battle and carnage may cease, and that the sword may be beaten into a plow share, that all the world may enjoy peace and prosperity and happiness.

We hope that opportunity for service may come to you and yours. We hope that you will have abundant means to care for your own and have some left to help others who are not so fortunate.

We hope that you will have good health. A happy New Year.

CONGRESS THIS WINTER

We do not anticipate that much real work beyond passing the appropriation bills will be done in congress during the short session. The Democrats won the election and with the exultation over the victory there comes the natural reaction after four years of strain, and the unspoken thought in their hearts is: "We are solid for four years, let us take a rest." Then there are some heart-burnings in the party and it will take adroit management on the part of the president to keep the ill-feeling from breaking out. Two or three of the ablest Democratic senators, and they from the south, could not bear the infamy of the Adamson bill and openly denounced it while it was being considered.

Only danger of an open rupture on the eve of a presidential election kept mostly smothered the indignation that many felt. Then, since the election, Mr. Bryan has been too much in evidence to suit that class of Democrats who think that statesmen has had his day and should subside. Then a multitude of the Democrats feel that they have been absolutely dominated by the president for four years and they chafe under the thought.

We do not look for much earnest work this next sixty days. They all feel that the appropriation bills must go through, but beyond them not much may be looked for. Then the Republicans may become thorns in the side of the dominant party. They are not in god humor. They feel that they should with good management, have carried Ohio and California and that they were victims of dishonorable trades in other states and they too are hot over the way the chief executive has subordinated congress to his will. Unless some sudden danger arises there will be little done this winter.

SO EASY TO CRITICISE

It is easy to criticize one's neighbor who has gone wrong in morals, or made a failure in business, say an exchange, and so hard to give credit for the effect of the influences impelling him to disaster, over which he has no control, that our criticism of him is often very uncharitable. Men often say how good they would have been, or what they would have accomplished had they been in the other man's place.

They do not stop to ask why the fellow that was in the other shoes did not succeed. If they did they would often find the man who went wrong or who failed, was entitled to great credit for standing up so bravely under forces and burdens that might easily have overthrown his accusers.

Sometimes the man who fails is a greater hero than another who wins. If you can't find anything good to say about your neighbor, then for goodness sake keep quiet.—Auburn Journal.

CAN BRYAN LEAD HIS PARTY

Mr. Bryan adds his voice to those which are advocating the abolishment of the Electoral College. He speaks of the "clumsiness" of the present system and declares that "some plan should be devised by which the voters can vote directly for the President." Perhaps Mr. Bryan can devise that plan. It will, of course, be reached through an amendment to the Constitution and by appropriate legislation in Congress afterward. It should involve a Federal definition of the qualification of voters and it should carry a Federal guarantee of the right of all voters, duly qualified, to vote freely and to have their votes counted as cast. In such a modification of the electoral system Mr. Bryan will have the co-operation of his political opponents. But can he carry his own party that far?

OAKLAND COMMERCE CHAMBER VIEWS ON ANNEXATION

The Oakland Chamber of Commerce has issued the following statement:

"If San Francisco continues in its agitation to consolidate with the cities around San Francisco bay, it will bring on a fight that probably will be carried, before the next Legislature.

"Oakland men and women, headed by Joseph H. King, president of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce, now are laying plans to curb San Francisco's ambition. King voices the general sentiment as set forth in his recent statement declaring war on the consolidation scheme. He said among other things:

"San Francisco is likely, in the natural course of development, to become the third city in California. Los Angeles will be first and Oakland second.

"San Francisco can borrow no more money until it gets more assessable property.

"This sentiment among San Franciscans for consolidation is not born of the holiday season. They have been considering this move for seven months."

"Then the president of the Oakland Chamber, speaking before the Ad Club, at which the movement against consolidation was crystallized, said:

"In 1906, San Francisco's bonded indebtedness was $4,260,000. In 1916 it was $44,760,000. It has reached the limit of its bonding power. It must have more territory to tax before it can borrow any more money.

"So, if there is any power San Francisco can use to bring about consolidation, it is going to use it. San Francisco would wed us, whether we would or no, for there has grown up on the other side of San Francisco bay a feeling of doubt and I think of fear.

"The communities on the east side of the bay now have under consideration—with every prospect of success, for these communities all favor it—a plan of consolidation of their own. This will enlarge the east bay cities by twenty miles to the east to the north and to the south.

"When this is consummated, San Francisco will fall into third place, with Los Angeles in first place and Oakland in second.

"Our great necessity is to advertise Oakland and its great growth in factories and new industries to the world, not as a part of San Francisco, but as a city which has within its own limits all the essentials of commerce and industry, as a city in which all of its men are standing together on the proposition of making the city useful to industry and usable by commerce.

"If the time comes—and it may come shortly—to decide what to do with regard to consolidation with San Francisco, I doubt much if the people will be found ready to get on the handwagon and do this thing merely because San Francisco thinks it deserves it. No one else is of that opinion."

"H. C. Capwell, newly elected vice president of the Oakland Chamber, declares that San Francisco "shall not lasso and hogtie us and beat out our brains."

"Plans already are under way in Oakland to watch every development in the state legislature to see that this city's interests are protected in any attempt to amend the state constitution to permit San Francisco to expand outside of its own county."

BACK TO THE LAND MOVEMENT

The annual report of the Secretary of the Interior shows that 19,000,000 acres of public lands were entered during the last fiscal year. This was more than 2,000,000 acres in excess of the entries allowed in any previous year. The preliminary report given to the press does not show how much of this acreage was allowed under the homestead laws which require residence as a prerequisite to securing the title. It is, therefore, impossible to determine from the facts available to what extent this increase in public land entries represents a "back-to-the-land movement."

NAME NOT IMPORTANT

In trying to find a way to "hedge" gracefully on the tariff question, the Democrats talk of a "bargaining" tariff and endeavor to find in the European war an explanation for the change in their attitude. We are not much concerned as to the name they call their tariff, just so it is protective in effect. Neither do we care much for the excuse they give, if they will vote for an "America First" tariff. But it would be much better to have a party in power that is for protection openly and as a matter of principle. We shall not be economically safe until such a party is in control of both branches of Congress and the White House.

Mr. Fitzpatrick is named as sole executor and he is also selected to act as the attorney for the estate. The estate consists of 160 acres of land at Colma, the Thornton home at the same place, money loaned and money on hand aggregating $10,000. The heirs at law are Mrs. Josephine A. RANCH ON SUMMIT REPORTED SOLD

Honora King "Mountain Brow" Acreage Goes to Capitalist for Home and Resort

The Honora King ranch on Mountain Brow comprising 50 acres is reported to have been sold to a San Francisco capitalist who is to erect a magnificent home on the property for a summer resort. For over thirty years Mrs. King has lived there and conducted the "Mountain Brow." The meals she served there were so palatable and tempting that parties came from every section of the peninsula and San Francisco to partake of them. On Sundays Mrs. King could scarcely accommodate the people who gathered at her hotel to enjoy the juicy steaks or tender chickens such as only Mrs. King could provide. Those who enjoyed the choice viands will hear with intense regret that the old resort has been sold. The new purchaser, it is said, will build a palatial home on the highest point of the property overlooking the valley and bay. A big price was paid for the realty. Mrs. King will most likely reside in Redwood City should the sale be consummated.

A benefit whist party will be given in Duff and Doyle hall next Friday evening, January 5. If you cannot go, buy a ticket. It's for a worthy cause. You will not miss the twenty-five cents and it will help a family sorely in need. This is the season when all are generous so let everyone be liberal to this worthy cause.

The Christmas tree at St. Joseph's parochial school last Tuesday afternoon was heartily enjoyed by over one hundred little tots. The tree was laden with all the good things of the season and Santa Claus was quite liberal in the distribution of them to the little ones. Before the arrival of Santa Claus an attractive program was rendered to the delight of all present.

David J. Buckley and family will depart for Oregon shortly after the first of the year to reside. Mr. Buckley has large interests in the north which compels him to be there. He has occupied the MacBain house on Mills avenue for the past year. The Buckleys have made many friends while here and their departure is a matter of deep regret among the people of Menlo Park. Mr. Buckley is in love with this locality and he cherishes a fond hope that he may some time in the future make it his permanent residence.

A few months ago, Constable Martin Walsh of Menlo Park and Traffic Officer Joseph A. Rosa were doing duty on the La Honda road. One day they took down the number of an automobile that was exceeding the speed limit on the mountain grade. They reported the number of the car to Justice of the Peace Seely who found that it was registered in the name of one Fred Taylor of Riverdale, Fresno county. Magistrate Seely sat himself down and penned a note to the constable at Riverdale asking him for the present address of Fred Taylor. The following reply has been received: "Your Mr. Fred Taylor has been sentenced to San Quentin for cattle stealing. I think you will find him home at all times."

About ten years ago William L. Growall sought the region of La Honda and secured three small redwood trees which he brought to his attractive gardens surrounding his home at Atherton and planted them. He watched them grow with pleasure cultivating and giving the trees every care to force their growth. They had reached a height of eight feet. They looked beautiful. When the family was absent just before Christmas some vandal came along and cut down the three trees and carried them away. Such vandalism is worthy of the severest punishment. A person who would enter a private garden and be guilty of such an act ought to be confined in state's prison. He should not be at large. No term is too severe to apply to the culprit.

DIAMOND STRATA IN OUR MIDST

Weird and Interesting Narrative Claiming the True Formation Exists on San Francisco

The following communication has been received from Joseph Williams of Santa Clara county. We are publishing it at his request and we leave it to the public to draw its own conclusions as to the facts therein stated:

"I have much of my time for over fifty years been engaged in prospecting and mining in this state. About five years ago I stumbled against something out of the ordinary, and found it was something which had never before been discovered on this continent. It was a diamond pipe. This is the term used in South Africa for what I shall call a diamond "Mother Lode". I have since found quite a number of these pipes in that particular district and have also discovered other districts over a distance of several hundred miles. As nothing is known about real diamonds in this country. Capital seems very wary about investigating and I have decided to make a public announcement of one of these gem districts and give everybody a chance. These diamond fields are right at home, being located through the hills on the upper part of the San Francisco creek on the Stanford property. As this property was deeded to the state by its original owner, then by right does it not belong to the citizens of the United States, and open to location as mineral land? As geology, especially the branch treating on gems, has been taught at this institution during the last twenty years, the professors and students should have little trouble in tracing the deposits, especially as several pipes have already been located. Often the banks, gulches and streams below these pipes are rich in gems which had been thrown out during ages when the pipes were in action. It would be advisable for parties looking for gems to follow down the streams and if the stream terminates on a beach, the gravel will be found rich in gems. However, if the creek empties into a slough, dredging would have to be resorted to."

Mr. and Mrs. J. Leroy Nickel last night formally announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Beatrice Nickel, and George McNear Bowles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip E. Bowles of Oakland. Miss Nickel is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nickel, is a granddaughter of the late Henry Miller, a sister of George Nickel, who married Miss Ernestine McNear two seasons ago, and of J. Leroy Nickel Jr. The bride-elect is an attractive young woman of brunette and from the time of her debut two years ago until the serious illness and subsequent death of her grandfather, the late Henry Miller, several weeks ago, was one of the most hospitable hostesses in society, scarcely a week passing that she did not preside at some luncheon, dinner or theatre party. The Nickel home here has often been the scene of many happy parties of her set. No date has been set for the wedding. Bowles is a graduate of Yale with the class of 1911 and is a member of the Pacific Union and other clubs in San Francisco. He is a brother of Mrs. Hiram Johnson Jr. (Amy Bowles) and of Robert H. Bowles and Philip E. Bowles Jr.

ELECTRIC ARC MELTS STEEL

Most Intense Heat Produced by Man Is From the Carbon Flame.

The most intense heat produced by man is that of the electric arc, and the possibilities of its application in various branches of American industry have only begun to be realized. Like many other useful scientific agents, the electric arc has been adopted by the burglar. There is no safe known that will not yield to the electric carbon applied by the skilled "safe cracker."

Aside from lighting, the most useful purpose to which the electric arc has been put is in the mending of broken or cracked castings and metal parts of all kinds. A broken shaft, for instance, can be resurrected from the junk heap of a skilled workman, with adequate apparatus, is given a chance at it. Moreover, a broken metal piece repaired by the electric arc is as serviceable as when new. In fact, strain tests made upon repaired castings often result in breakage at a different point than where the repair was made.

Operators are well protected against danger. Due to the intense heat at the point at which the carbon pours its electrical fire upon the metal, the operators usually wear helmets or at least hold between their eyes and the arc a thick plate of cobalt glass. The amount of protection required depends upon the strength of the current fed to the arc—Popular Science Monthly.

EXHAUSTING A SUBJECT.

A Satirical Hint to Both Young and Old Writers.

Writers should early learn not to try to exhaust a subject. If there is one thing above another thing that a subject will not stand for it is to be exhausted. It is the one tireless thing extant. In every other way subjects are amiable and tractable.

If you go at a subject in the right spirit you can say nearly anything you wish about it, but immediately you try to get a rope around a subject's neck and chase it around a ring until it is absolutely used up the said subject takes on a dry, dogged, stubborn air and refuses to be interesting, and of course a writer who cannot keep his subject interesting is lost.

Think of the most uninteresting books you ever read. They were written by men who quite evidently set down with the mental resolution, "Now, I'll just clean up on this subject once and for all, so that it will henceforth be clear to all posterity, even unto the day of judgment." But of course no such aim was ever realized.

The only sure result of trying to exhaust a subject is to prove that it is exhaustless.—Life

An Awful Experience.

A native diver descended into the water to see whether one of the piers, then in course of construction, had set. While he was engaged in this work a great iron cylinder subsided a little, crushing his hand between it and the masonry. When, on a signal being given, another diver came down to find his unfortunate comrade imprisoned under water without hope of escape. After a few moments of despair and harrowing uncertainty a speechless decision was arrived at, and the newcomer proceeded with chisel and hammer to hack off his unhappy companion's hand at the wrist. The prisoner was thus liberated, but died soon after reaching the surface from the shock. Never, I think, has an optimum eater in his dreams imagined a more pitiful spectacle of hopeless human suffering.—"Travels in India."

Horns of a Dilemma.

We apply the term "horns of a dilemma" to a situation in which a person is confronted by two opposite and conflicting lines of conduct, the advantages or disadvantages of which appear to balance; hence the analogy to the "horns" of an animal.
